Nyack, N. Y.

S ON of Isaac C. Haring, M. D., and Sarah Tallman Haring. Born at New City, Rockland Co. N. V. New City, Rockland Co., N. Y., on April 4, 1860. Motley in the Rise of the French Republic makes mention of one of my ancestors about 1573. "John Haring of Horn had planted himself entirely alone upon the Dyke where it was so narrow between the V on one side and the Diemer Lake on the other that two men could hardly stand abreast. Here, armed with sword and shield he had actually opposed and held in check over 1,000 of the enemy, during a period long enough to enable his own men, if they had been willing, to rally and effectively repell the attack. It was too late; the battle was too far lost to be restored; but still the brave soldier held his post till by his devotion he had enabled all those of his compatriots who still remained in the entrenchments to make good their retreat. He then plunged into the sea and untouched by spear or bullet effected his escape. Had he been a Greek or Roman or Horatius or Chabrias, his name would have been famous in history, his statue erected in the Market place, for the bold Dutchman on his dyke had manifested as much valor in a sacred cause as the most Classic heroes of Antiquity." See Motley's Rise of the Dutch Republic, Vol. 2, pages 360-361. Studied at Clarkstown Public School, Park Ridge Institute. Rutgers Prep. Captain of Rutgers Foot Ball Team. Business Manager of Targum. CHARLES EDWARD LORD,

CHARLES E. Lord, for many years a member of the city staff of The New York Times, died at the home of his father, the Rev. Edward Lord, at Patchogue, L. I., Sunday, March 21st, 1897. Mr. Lord's health began to fail about two years ago, and continued to fail until consumption developed. With rare pluck he kept upon his feet and at his work until three weeks ago, when he went to his father's home in search of rest.

The death of Mr. Lord takes away from the ranks of his co-workers a man whom each and all of them liked for his manly, upright nature, his never-failing amiability, and his genial companionableness. He had a wide circle of acquaintances, and was welcomed wherever he went.

Mr. Lord was born in Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., May 21st, 1860. He was graduated from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., and soon afterward found employment as a reporter for the Tribune of this city. From that newspaper Mr. Lord came to The New York Times about 1882, and had since remained in the service of this journal.

He was a brother of Chester S. Lord, managing editor of the New York Sun, and recently appointed a Regent of the University of the State of New York, and of Mrs. C. P. W. Merritt, wife of Dr. Merrit, who is widely known as a missionary to China.—The New York Times.

IRVING STRONG UPSON.

R. Upson was born at Marion, Hartford County, Conn., February 5th, 1855. He was the son of Miles Henry Upson. His early education was received at the Lewis Academy, Southington, Conn., and the Hopkins Grammar School in New Haven. From 1874 until 1877 he taught in the schools of New Preston, Southington, and Chestershire, Conn. His original intention had been to enter Yale, but a former residence at Somerville, N. J., and an acquaintance with Rev. Dr. John B. Thompson, Rutgers 1851, turned him to Rutgers College. college in 1877, he graduated with the class of 1881 with the degree of A. B. It had been his purpose to prepare for the ministry, but circumstances and his own peculiar aptitude and faithfulness marked out for him an exceptionally useful career in another sphere. At graduation Dr. George H. Cook, Vice President of Rutgers College, asked him to become his assistant. This beginning naturally led to his association with the college itself. He became Librarian of the college in 1884 and retained the office until 1906, although for several years assistants relieved him of the routine work of the library. He served the Faculty as its Secretary from 1891 until his death. He was also Registrar of the college for the same period. Since 1905 he had been Treasurer of the Board of Trustees. Besides these offices he was for many years and until his death Secretary and Treasurer of the New Jersey State Agricultural Experiment Station. He was Treasurer of the Free Public Library of New Brunswick and one of the managers of the Children's Industrial Home of that city. From 1883 until 1904 he was Biographer of the Rutgers Alumni Association, and prepared the General Catalogue of the college which appeared in 1886. Since 1904 he had been Treasurer of the Alumni Association.

The mere statement of the offices which Mr. Upson held fails entirely to indicate the service he rendered to his Alma Mater. In the highest sense he gave his whole life to her from his graduation till his death. Rarely taking a vacation even in the heat of summer, he toiled early and late for Rutgers. His remarkable powers of organization, his broad and accurate memory, his untiring diligence and faithfulness were always given to the college. The system and orderliness of the college records are due to him. His relations to the Trustees, Faculty, Alumni and under-graduates were most intimate and friendly. In all these connections his genial personality will be sorely missed; but he organized his work so well that it will go on for many years on the lines which he marked out.

Mr. Upson was unmarried. He showed his complete devotion to Rutgers by providing that eventually the major portion of his estate shall become the property of the college. After several months of illness which at times detained him at home, he died as he had lived at the post of duty, at his desk in the college office at nine o'clock, Thursday morning, February 25th, 1915.

EDWARD BURNETT VOORHEES.

PROFESSOR Voorhees was born at Mine Brook, Somerset county, New Jersey, June 22d, 1856. He was the son of John Voorhees. Preparing for college at the country schools and with private tutors he graduated form Rutgers in 1881 with the degree of A. B. After graduation he was assistant to the Professor of Chemistry at Weslevan University for a year, 1881-82. Then he became Assistant Chemist of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station. After serving as assistant for six years, 1882-88, and as chemist for five years more, 1888-93, he was made Director of the Experiment Station, a position which he held until his death. He had also been Professor of Agriculture at Rutgers College since 1890 and Director of the Agricultural College Experiment Station and Superintendent of the College Farm since 1900. The activities of Professor Voorhees and his usefulness to the college and the cause of agriculture in New Jersey and elsewhere can scarcely be measured. He was President of the Board of Directors of the New Jersey Weather Bureau in 1893. From 1893 until 1901 he was Vice President of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture and since 1901 he had been President of the board. He was President of the New Jersey Microscopical Society in 1905-06. From 1897 until 1904 he was Secretary and Treasurer of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations and in 1904-05 he was President of this association. He was also President of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists in 1893-94. Besides these he was a member of the American Chemical Society and the Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science. In 1902 Professor Voorhees received the Nichols Research Medal for the best paper containing results of chemical research reported to the Journal of the American Chemical Society. Since 1896 he had been agent of the United States Department of Agriculture for irrigation in New Jersey. He was the author of the following (1) "First Principles of Agriculture," 1895; (2) "Fertilizers," 1898; and (3) "Forage Crops" 1907, besides numerous bulletins and magazine articles on agricultural subjects. He lectured almost constantly before farmers' institutes, boards of agriculture, dairy and breeders' associations, and horticultural societies, not only in New Jersey but in many other states. In 1884 Rutgers College gave him the degree of A. M., and in 1900 he received the degree of Doctor of Science from the University of Vermont.

On October 18th, 1883, Professor Voorhees married Miss Anna E. Amerman, of South Branch, N. J. Mrs. Voorhees, five sons and two daughters survive him. About a year ago Professor Voorhees suffered a stroke of paralysis while attending a meeting of the Board of Agriculture at Trenton. From this he had recovered sufficiently to be ready for work last fall but another stroke rendered him almost entirely helpless. This useful man died at his home, June 6th, 1911.

JOHN TRUMBULL MARSHALL.

R. Marshall was born in Kingston, N. Y., January 8th, 1860. He was the son of Prof. Arthur Ward Marshall, and a descendant of Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, the American patriot and friend of Washington. The family removing to Metuchen, N. J., in his early boyhood, Mr. Marshall prepared for college under his father's instruction and graduated from the scientific course of Rutgers College in 1881. Immediately he became associated with Thomas A. Edison, whose works were then located at Menlo Park, N. J. He continued with Mr. Edison until his death and was at that time assistant engineer of the lamp works of the General Electric Company at Harrison, N. J. He invented a photometer which is widely used in testing carbon filament lamps and had carried on many valuable experiments in connection with the tungsten filament.

Mr. Marshall was a very useful citizen of Metuchen, where he gave much of his time to the interests of the village. He served on the school board, the library board and the park association and was a deacon and trustee of the Presbyterian church. He had gone to Bermuda on account of his health and died there January 1st, 1910.

FREDERIC WILLIAM MALCOLM.

FREDERICK W. Malcolm was born in the city of New York on the twenty-second day of November, 1854. He received his early training at the Poughkeepsie Military Institute and at the Charlier Institute (now the De La Salle), in the city of New York. He entered Rutgers College in the fall of 1878, and received his degree of B. S. with the Class of 1881. Almost immediately after his graduation he took a position as superintendent of ways and maintenance of the Miami branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, with headquarters at Cincinnati, Ohio. For four years he held this position, and was next employed by the Chesapeake and other railroads, with headquarters at Hinton, West Virginia, where he remained about a year and resigned. He then became superintendent of the Appalachian Land and Improvement Company, with headquarters at Pineville, Ky. This position he held for over five years, and while in charge of the company's property, he achieved a number of the most commendable successes, quite as many as a man of his age could possibly accomplish.

On leaving Pineville he returned to New York and took charge of his father's affairs, where he continued to reside until he contracted a severe cold which resulted in pneumonia, and he died on the twenty-fourth day of February, 1899, after an illness of five days.

Mr. Malcolm was prolific in practical inventions, one of his automatic railway signal devices having received the attention and commendation of some of the most celebrated railroad engineers in the country. Also several of his railroad frogs and similar apparatus should be mentioned. He spent the last few months of his life in endeavoring to develop an electric door lock, which was found practically complete on his work-table after his death. Some of his bright ideas were involved in various draughting instruments, several of which are used by the most skilled draughtsmen. Mr. Malcolm was a member of the Delta Phi Society, and the Delta Phi Club of New York, but was no enthusiast as a club devotee; he was more infatuated by the quiet of his atelier. Mr. Malcolm was sincerely and deeply attached to his Alma Mater. His very last words, almost, being those of direction as to what should be done for old Rutgers.

EDWARD BARZILLAI DANA, JR., M. D.

MR.Dana was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1863. He was a student for a time in the class of 1881. After leaving college he studied medicine, and upon being admitted to practice settled at Metuchen, N. J. He acquired a large practice and filled a prominent place in the general life of the community. He was president of the board of health, member of the board of education, an active Mason, and a member of the Presbyterian Church. He died at Metuchen January 21st, 1904, in the forty-first year of his age. His wife and son survive him.

JOHN CLIFFORD PERRINE.

M. Perrine was born March 1st, 1855, at Pennington, N. J., and died of hectic consumption, at his home, November 10th, 1888. After leaving college he studied law for nearly a year in Trenton, N. J., but finding the close application to books and office duties were seriously affecting his health, he reluctantly gave up his cherished intention of being a lawyer. Associating himself with a druggist, he found congenial duties for eight or nine years, until about a year before his death, when his health failed him, and he retired from all active occupation. In college he was a quiet, unassuming student of rare mental ability, and a friend of every classmate; in business, prompt, accurate and trustworthy, and at home a good son and affectionate brother.

PETER JOSEPH GERLACH (N. G.)

D^{R. P. J. Gerlach, who was among the pioneer physicians of Spokane, Washington, having come here nine years ago, died at his home on July 21st, 1898, from an attack of epilepsy, from which disease he had been suffering for some time. A wife and two stepsons survive him.—Spokane (Washington) paper.}

DE WITT G. LIPPINCOTT.

MR.Lippincott was born in Ulster county, N. Y., April 15th, 1861, a son of the Rev. Benjamin C. Lippincott. He attended Rutgers College for a time with the class of 1881, and then entered upon medical studies at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, being graduated there in 1882. In 1883 he located at Campbell Hall, N. Y., where he continued practicing with marked ability until his death. He died June 7th, 1905.

CORNELIUS WHITENACK STRYKER, (N. G.)

M. Stryker died in Philadelphia on Monday morning, February 10, 1890, of pneumonia, after an illness of only a week, aged thirty years. Mr. Stryker was engaged in the drug business, at Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Philadelphia, the firm name being Stryker & Ogden. He was a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in 1882, and has been engaged in his profession since that time. He was a young man of much intelligence, of a cheerful disposition, and was very popular with his friends, of whom he had an unusually large number.

WILLIAM RICHARD GEORGE.

R. George was born at Dover, N. J., in 1863. He was for a time a member of the class of 1881 at Rutgers College, taking the scientific course. While in college he was distinguished as a baseball pitcher, a swimmer and an oarsman. Later he became a professional baseball player and was pitcher for the St. Louis National League baseball team. He was also a mining engineer. In 1885 Mr. George married Miss Elizabeth Fischer of New Brunswick, N. J., who survives him. He died suddenly in his office in New York City in January, 1916.

JOHN KINNAN HOW.

M. How was born in New Brunswick, N. J., March 2d, 1860. He was the son of Henry K. How. Preparing at the Rutgers Grammar School, he graduated from Rutgers College in 1881 with the degree of B. Sc. Moving to Baltimore in 1887 he formed the John K. How Electric Light Company and was connected with it until two years before his death, when his health compelled retirement. In 1909 he was Vice President of the Builders' Exchange of Baltimore. On December 30th, 1890, Mr. How married Miss Amelia Belt of Baltimore. His widow and one son survive him. He died at Bel Air, Md., June 9th, 1915.

Our 35th Reunion.

Our 35th reunion was held at Hotel Klein upon June 13th, at 6 P.M. After urgent solicitation to all surviving members, we lined up to the number of eleven. The following were present: Brooks, Cain, Conklin, Griffin, Wight, Todd, Schneeweiss, Wilson, McNair, Grant and Wyckoff; with our honored guest, Prof. VanDyke, the only surviving Professor of our day, who has just completed fifty years of active service for the College.

It was a gladsome occasion. Some of the fellows had not met since graduation. Some looked almost as youthful as upon the day of graduation, while others showed the care of years. It was an informal affair, held in the small banquet room of the Hotel. A generous menu was served. Stories and happenings of College days were rehearsed. Letters were read from absent members. Prof. VanDyke delivered a very touching address. The proposition was made to effect a more permanent organization for closer and effective union.

None of the old officers having responded, the following were selected: President, Wyckoff; Secretary, Brooks; Treasurer, Cain; Historian, Wyckoff. The Secretary reported having secured over $600 for the College from the different members and hoped to make it a thousand.

The Historian said he had ready for the press a complete history of the class, as far as he could secure it, which would soon be ready for distribution.

The whole affair was so enjoyable that it was unanimously resolved to have an annual reunion. We adjourned to meet again in October at the 150 anniversary of the College.

HISTORIAN.

Friday, October 13th, 1916, 7 P. M., saw gathered together at our class banquet at Winants Hall, in connection with other classes according to the order of the Sesqui Committee, Brooks, Cain, McNair, Todd, Schmitz, Conklin, Schneeweiss, Stephens, Aitkin, Wilson, Wight and Wyckoff. We were proud to be a part of the great celebration. Proud by our presence to congratulate the College on its great forward move. That she might go forward to greater conquests of efficiency and success was the sincere wish of all.
